IN A FEW WORDS

Dear HVTC,

Spring is so interesting! One day it's gorgeous, the next it's back to winter coats; then beautiful, then back to splitting wood for the fire. Geez, Louise! One thing's for sure, on Monday, May 4th we're gonna plunge into the lake at Wilson State Park; ice or no ice (BYOIP-Bring Your Own Ice Pick). See ya out there!

Sincerely,
Mark H. Wilson
Professional Life & Triathlon Coach

HVTC Featured Athlete: Troy Weaver

By Mark H. Wilson

How'd you like to go to work and begin a conversation with your "client" while in the pool, on the spin-bike or on a treadmill?! How'd you like to do that again the next day, but at a completely different location in a completely different town?! It gets even better; how'd you like to be asked by your boss to leave the office by 3:30 pm so you can get-in your long bike ride?! In your dreams, you say; well, our Featured Athlete of the Month, Troy Weaver, has got that dream-job and he's enjoying every moment. What's his secret? Let's find out.

Hudson Valley Triathlon Club

Volume VIII, Issue No. 94 March 2009

Troy grew-up in Lamar, Pennsylvania and attended Bald Eagle Nittany in Mill Hall, PA. His Undergraduate studies were at Lock Haven University with a Dual Major, Bachelor of Science in Health and Physical Education as well as a BS in Recreation (Fitness Management). In high school, Troy played football, baseball and cheerleading...um...he was the mascot decked-out in a Black Panther Suit. Nice! In college, he ran track and played rugby.

Currently, Troy lives in Westminster, Maryland and has the longest commute of any HVTC-er to the Summer Tri-Series! He is the Vice President of Health and Wellness Operations Y of Central Maryland. It's a huge responsibility as Troy oversees 8 full facility Y's in the middle of the state. His product line includes; Aquatic, Fitness, Facilities, Membership and Sports. And he loves every minute of it; he works at work AND trains at work! "Could life be any better?!" Post workout-wise, yes; his down-time involves watching movies to chill out after tough training sessions...with plenty of pizza! Fantabulous.

The first triathlon Troy participated in was in 1995 at Colonial Beach, Virginia (Olympic Distance). However, he arrived at triathlon via swimming and biking to help rehab a back injury and mostly for general fitness. One day, while he was finishing-up a swim workout Troy overheard some members of the Y talking about the Chesapeake Bay Swim (4.6 miles); he asked them if they thought he could complete the swim. They sort-of laughed at him and said "No way!" Well, that's all it took; GAME ON. Since then, Troy has finished the swim 3 times; and twice beating his "buddies" out of the water. "I am a swimmer!" Next thing ya know, a friend introduced him to running a bit and twisted his arm to do that first tri in 1995; Troy was hooked as soon as he hit the water.

Several family members and friends think he's nuts for doing triathlon, although most think it's cool. And the ones that think he's off his rocker have good reason. Interesting side note, Troy completed a half Ironman where his right triceps muscle was torn-off the bone! Ouch!!!! After the race, he was operated on and the surgeon had to use a cadaver tendon and pig tendon to re-attach his triceps. "Now, the smell of bacon makes me sad and I get sudden urges to roll in the mud during my runs in the rain." Heavens to Betsy!

Troy really likes the sport of triathlon; he meets a ton of crazy people from all walks of life, it's a cool lifestyle and challenge that every race is different even if it's a race he's done several times. He reckons one walks a bit taller after completing a swim, bike and run event; especially Ironman. He even recommends the sport to practically everyone he meets; being associated with so many YMCA's it's easy to find folks who are ready for the step-up. Troy has assisted many newbies experience their first-ever tri.

Hudson Valley Triathlon Club

Volume VIII, Issue No. 94 March 2009

A seasoned tri-veteran is the best way to describe Troy; he's raced for over 13 years and in multiple states (MD, VA, TN, KY, AZ, NY, FL, AL, MI, ME, NH, DE, NJ, PA). He's finished 75 races (35 sprints, 17 Olympic, 15 Half Ironman, 6 Ironman and 1 SOS). In addition, he's kept 70 swim caps of the 75 races he's completed; yikes, where does he keep them all?! The 2008 tri-season was a break-out year for Troy; General Smallwood Triathlon-Sprint (2nd M40-44), Lums Pond Triathlon-Sprint (3rd M40-44), New Jersey State Triathlon-Sprint (3rd M40-44), Marshman Triathlon-Sprint (3rd M40-44), Blue Water Triathlon-Sprint (3rd M40-44), USAT Age-Group National Championship-Sprint (14th M40-44). Fantastic!

Troy's 2009 goals are determined and exact; he'd like to do well at the USAT Age-Group National Championship in Tuscaloosa, Alabama in August; and, he's aimed at becoming a USAT Age-Group All-American. It's all a no-brainer; unless, of course, he's planning-on replacing more body parts from a pig! Thanks, Troy.

Muscle of the Month

The Multifidus Muscles

By: Dr. David Ness, CCSP, ART

The multifidus muscles are groups of muscles that are deep and are attached to the spine. They attach from your tailbone (sacrum) at every spinal level all the way up to the top of your neck, and span 3 spinal segments per muscle. These thin muscles are mostly responsible for maintaining posture and alignment in all activities, and are considered part of the back core muscles along with the erector spinae muscles. These muscles work in concert with the other core muscles; the deep abdominal muscles, pelvic floor muscles, hip muscles, and diaphragm. Training these muscles specifically can be done with Pilate's, Yoga, Egoscue Technique, and other methods including physio balls or stability training devices like Bosu Balls.

Hudson Valley Triathlon Club

Volume VIII, Issue No. 94 March 2009

People with lower back pain usually have weak and tight multifidi muscles which results in pain, decreased performance, and back injuries. Long standing weakness of the multifidi muscle can lead to early spinal degeneration, disc degeneration, and eventually disc herniation. If you ask any triathlete what it is like to train with lower back pain and you will find out how it can impair your training, or completely prevent you from training, and racing.

In our office we see all types of athletes coming in with weak spinal stabilizers causing lower back pain. The most common causes of having weak multifidi would be sedentary jobs requiring many hours seated, poor posture while being seated, and long hours driving. The second most common cause would be an injury from heavy or repetitive lifting, or from an accident or fall. If you are in this type of situation or have had a previous back injury, and you do not have a regular stretching and strengthening routine for your lower back it will let you know. If on top of the above described situation you are a triathlete spending 5-10 hours on your bike per week, and 3-6 hours running per week, and swimming this could aggravate an already weak and tight lower back.

Lower back pain that does not resolve itself within 4-6 weeks should really cause you to seek professional help to identify the source of your lower back pain, and help with a rehabilitation program to get you back on track. Treatments that help relieve lower back pain from tight multifidi muscles and other causes of lower back pain are; chiropractic care, physical therapy, massage, acupuncture, Active Release techniques, Egoscue technique, Graston Technique, Alexander technique to name a few.

About Dr. Ness: A chiropractor for over 20 years, Dr. Ness has been a Sports Chiropractor and certified Active Release Provider since 2004. He has treated patients at the past four Ironman events at Lake Placid, and has provided treatment for the HVTC Summer Tri-Series since 2005, the N.Y.T.C. Club races since 2006, and at the S.O.S Triathlon since 2004. Currently he is the director of Performance Sports and Wellness at 3 Cherry Hill Road in New Paltz. Performance Sports and Wellness offers Active Release Techniques, Chiropractic Care, Acupuncture, Sports Massage, and Strength Training.
